Course Objectives

This course seeks to introduce students to intermediate macroeconomics. It discusses such basic macroeconomic issues as national income and production, inflation, unemployment, economics growth and fluctuations, etc., using tools developed in elementary economics courses such as Econ130 and 131.

Prerequisites and Requirements

Econ130 and/or 131. Basic knowledge of mathematics and statistics is helpful.

Textbook and Study Guide

N. Gregory Mankiw, Macroeconomics, 5th edition, Worth Publishers.
Roger T. Kaufman, Student Guide and Workbook, 5th edition, Worth Publishers.

Grading

Your grade depends on a midterm (40%), a final (40%), and random attendance checks (20%). No +/- will be used. Note that exam time/venue is subject to change.

Miscellaneous

Both exams are in the form of multiple-choice questions. Both are close-book exams. The final exam is comprehensive. Make-up exams are only provided with legitimate medical emergence documents.

Most of the exam questions come out of the exercises in the textbook. You are strongly encouraged to try these exercises after class. I will discuss some of these exercises in class too. Moreover, I will discuss course-related current economic issues and you might see exam questions based on them. So it is imperative that you attend the lectures. Also, check out the course web site for updated information.

Suggestions

This is not a difficult course. You will learn a lot of useful tools and have fun. Read the text before coming to the lectures. Make good use of my office hours, and don't wait until the last minute before the exams to ask for help. You are certainly encouraged to ask questions during the lectures too. I shall also respond to questions via email.
