Asian Economic Development
Econ 415

Malcom Dowling
MW 10:30 – 11:35 am

Are you interested in how Asia is becoming the focus of global growth?

Are you curious about how Asian economies have been able to grow more rapidly than the United States?

Would you like to know the important new roles that China and India are playing in the global economy?

Would you like to explore the importance of ethics and fair play in the economic development of Asia?

If your answers to these questions are YES, then this course is important for YOU to take. You will learn:

The secret to rapid growth of the Asian “miracle” economies.

The source of our current global economic imbalances and reasons for the global crisis.

How Asia developed its industrial strength.

What Asia is doing to reduce poverty and hunger.

The key roles of health and education in Asia’s economic development.

(Prerequisites: ECON 120, 130 or 131)